Abstract: English Study for AIT Students is a page designed to be a gateway for Aichi Institute of Technology students in their English studies. This paper explains about this page using screen shots.

1. Introduction

English Study for AIT Students is a page designed to be a gateway for Aichi Institute of Technology students in their English studies. This page introduces them to the university, to the English conversation teachers' web pages, to the Moodle courses, and to the locations of computers that students can use on campus. It also has a video that explains how to log in to the Moodle courses that are used in the freshmen English conversation classes. This page also has links to various web pages for further study. The class syllabus and the first handout is also linked off this page. This article will explain what can be found on each of these individual pages.

This page will be explained to give students an example of what they can find on their teachers' homepages. The page has an illustration of the teacher and a brief introduction. There are links to the English Study for AIT Students (http://www.manythings.org/ait/ and to the support page for the textbook Many Things http://www.manythings.org/mt/), which is the textbook for the Moodle course. There are also links to the teacher's various hobbies and Web projects. Contact information for the teacher is also included.

To make it easy for students to access the freshman Conversation Moodle curriculum there are links to each teacher's course. These links are direct links to each teacher's course. This helps students bypass the main Moodle entry. Students will first get the default log in page for the Moodle site, then be forwarded directly to their teacher's course where they then type in the "course enrollment key."

5. Moodle Login Video

This video shows students how to login to their Moodle classes. Step by step, clear and simple instructions are given in English as the cursor is moved to each part of the login. This video, which is approximately one minute in length, gives students their first English listening activity.

These courses are for students who have completed their freshman conversation courses. Students who want to continue to study using Moodle can register here and continue their English study while on campus. There is a link to the English Forums. This allows upperclassmen to contribute to the Forums course and through this to see what the freshman students are writing about. Forum entries by upperclassmen can provide interesting material to freshmen students. Upperclassmen can also comment of entries by freshmen students.

6. Computer Locations on Campus

This part of the page lists the location of computers on campus that can be used for study.

This page links the words used in the English textbooks used by AIT freshmen to an online dictionary where students can see the definition and also listen to pronunciation of words. This helps students to study efficiently, since they can browse the list of words and easily find the definition of words they do not know with a mouse click, rather than needing to type the words.
